WAITE'S TROUBLE.

Hearing of the Case Against Him Begun.

AN OGDEN EMBEZZLER

Caught in New York—Settle Vanderbilt
Temple is Responsible for the Life of
One Man at Least—Other News Notes
Of General Interest.

DENVER, Aug. 30.—The hearing in the case against Governor Waite, President of the fire and police board, Chief of Police Armstrong and Police Matron Kate Dwyer, charged with conspiracy to detain Likens, was begun before United States Commissioner Hunsford today. Testimony was introduced showing a conspiracy to besmirch Mrs. Likens' character in order to pave the way for her removal as a matron.

A letter to her from Jesse Parr, of Pueblo, in answer to an advertisement for a position as a housekeeper, was used for this purpose.

Ex-Matron Likens testified that the reason given her by police board for her dismissal was "economy." No opportunity was ever given her to explain the letter from Jesse Parr.

She considered Parr's letter in answer to the advertisement in Mrs. Ellen Harnett for a situation as cook or housekeeper, private, not official, business. District Attorney Johnson asked Mrs. Likens to what party she be loaned.

Assistant Attorney-General Sales, who appeared for the defendants, objected.

Mr. Johnson thereupon declared: "I expect to show that all the defendants are members of the populist party; that the witness is a member of the republican party; and that every effort was made to get her out of office. I expect to show that although this letter was addressed to the note to Mrs. Likens, it was obtained from her, was carried to the president of the board, and was announced by him that it was the evidence upon which he could remove this witness."

The commissioner sustained Mr. Sales' objection.

Jesse Parr, who wrote the letter, testified that he did not intend it for any of the defendants but for Mrs. Likens.

Mrs. Flora Frincke, formerly housekeeper for Matron Dwyer, testified that Miss Dwyer, over a year ago, in her presence told Governor Waite's private secretary she would have Mrs. Likens' place if it took her a year to get it.

Mrs. Frincke testified that Miss Dwyer discharged her because she refused to take a letter from Mrs. Likens' desk.

Friends of Mrs. Likens testified Matron Dwyer gave them to understand Mrs. Likens was removed because she was engaged in an immoral business.

Police Commissioner Barnes said President Mullins produced the Parr letter before the board, and declared it proved her an improper person for the office of matron.

Mr. Barnes replied that the letter contained nothing derogatory to Mrs. Likens. She was never notified to appear in regard to the matter.

Mr. Johnson put in evidence President Mullins' letter to the Rocky Mountain News in which he announced: "Should the very ardent defenders of Mrs. Likens desire further information as to the reasons why Mrs. Likens was chosen as the one to be sacrificed to reduce expenses in the department, they can obtain such information by calling upon the fire and police board who are reluctant to submit these matters to the public press."

Mr. Mullins denied having written that portion of the letter quoted, but acknowledged having attached his signature to it.

A few more witnesses were examined but gave unimportant testimony, after which the hearing was continued until tomorrow morning, when Governor Waite will take the stand.

Governor Waite's appearance and conduct throughout the day was that of a man at peace with the world.

EX-TREASURER OF OGDEN ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—William L. Helfrich, living on West Fortieth street, was arrested this afternoon at the office of Charles A. Baldwin & Co., stock brokers, on a telegram from the chief of police of Ogden, Utah. The dispatch stated Helfrich was wanted in that place on three indictments, charging him with embezzlement of public funds while the treasurer of Ogden in 1891.

He was remanded here today to await extradition papers.

Horrible Treatment That Drove Rose Vaughn, Now in the Asylum, Out of Her Mind.

Rose Vaughn was brought down from Salt Lake about ten days ago and placed in the insane asylum. Yesterday her husband Hyrum Vaughn and his brother Nephi, together with his mother, Annie, aged seventy-four years, had a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Greenman of Salt Lake on a charge of assaulting, beating and abusing the poor woman who is now in the asylum, which treatment it is alleged drove her out of her mind.

The Vaughns inhabit a most loathsome dug-out in Coon's canyon near Salt Lake, and some of their neighbors gave most damning testimony against them. The following is the story of one witness, Harriett Wallace, as given by the Salt Lake Herald this morning:

"Last December, when the weather was very cold, Rose, the woman who is now insane, came to witness's house with her face scratched so that the flesh was torn off to the bone, her head was bleeding, her clothes torn, and she was shoeless. She said her mother-in-law had done it. On another occasion witness saw Rose with a black eye; that was the time when her mother-in-law tried to drown her in the canal. Witness also testified that for a week or ten days previous to the unfortunate woman being sent to the asylum the Vaughns had driven her from the dug-out at night and compelled her to sleep on the prairie. In winter they made her herd sheep, gather wood and carry water. She was without shoes and half naked most of the time."

Other witnesses corroborated, adding that Rose was literally eaten up with vermin and that her hair cropped so as to prevent her mother-in-law from dragging her around by the hair.

Margie Miller, the 11-year-old daughter of Rose, said that Hyrum Vaughn and the old woman often beat and abused her mother, and that on one occasion the old woman had tried to drown her mother in the canal, when two men came along and rescued her.

The tale was so horrible that the exclamation, "In the name of God, why didn't you people in the neighborhood rise up and lynch these people?" was wrong from Attorney Echnor.

His honor discharged Nephi Vaughn and found Hyrum and his mother guilty, and instructed the sheriff to bring them up for sentence. Meantime, the little 6-year-old boy, Rose's child, who lived in the place with the others and was dirty and ragged, is being taken care of by Sheriff McQueen.

MINING NEWS.

N. Lee Clipped From the Mining Column of the Millard County Blade.

Ten thousand pounds of Utah ore from Fish Springs came in on Monday. It is rumored that the Utah people are intending to increase their ore shipments.

Sidley Black reports having uncovered a fine body of copper-ore on the claims, the Lone Pine which adjoins the Alta in the Detroit district.

Another important find of copper-ore has been made in the Beaver range—east of the Beaver bottom. The lucky finder's name is Kelly. J. M. and Warren Moody will go down in a day or two and do some prospecting.

Supt. E. L. Stewart made the Blade office a five minutes call yesterday morning and says the Ibez Smelter site has been definitely located at Leamington. That the shaft between the mouth of tunnel and old works on the ledge is down to 10 feet in high grade ore, varying in width from five to twenty feet. That the face of the tunnel is daily reaching in toward the ore, and that Albert Pettit goes out with Mr. Stewart to begin work on the new boarding house, etc., etc.

The sales which were commenced last week, of the Radler and 34 in the groups of mines, in the Detroit district, to Saint Paul parties, have greatly encouraged the mining fraternity in this part of Millard county. Within the past two months from three groups the parties selling have realized $172,000. This, when considered with the fact that the parties who have purchased the Ibez property are now engaged in erecting camp and boarding houses, together with offices for business and assaying, assures to other property holders a lively camp in the future, one that will be a personal benefit to every citizen in this part of Millard county. It is the intention of the company to work a corps of miners large enough to extract from 60 to 80 tons of ore per day as soon as the smelter at Leamington has been constructed.

A MARVELOUS SIGHT.

Professor Dewar Makes the Fragments of a Soap Bubble Float in Air.

A frozen soap bubble broken in two and floating like an iridescent transparent eggshell on the surface of a vessel of liquid air was one of the marvelous sights shown by Professor Dewar in a recent lecture at the Royal Institution on the effects of intense cold. The investigation of this new field of science is developing many wonderful bits of knowledge, some of them sure to be turned to valuable practical account before long.

The pretty experiment spoken of which delighted the audience was quite simple. The professor poured a few spoonfuls of liquid air into a glass vessel. The intense cold caused by evaporation produced a miniature snowstorm in the atmosphere above the liquid. The operator lowered the soap bubble on the end of a rod into the freezing atmosphere. The bubble became darker. The movements of the rainbow colored film grew slower. It contracted somewhat in size and a moment later froze. A slight movement broke it from the rod in two pieces, which floated for an hour, gradually accumulating a tiny snowdrift within, precipitated from the freezing air above.

Don't Believe In Hoodlums, But—

If anybody in Chicago possesses a magnifying glass, he can get a good price for it by applying to J. W. Levy, 4211 Calumet avenue. Mr. Levy is of the opinion that a large sized hoodlum has moved into his neighborhood and gone to housekeeping.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Levy lost her pocketbook containing $25. Two hours later Mrs. Levy had her muff and pocketbook stolen from her. She reported the same day Mr. Levy received a telegram that one of his firm's creditors had failed.

"The creditor was in debt to the firm for $200 worth of goods. And to round out the hard luck story of a day Mr. Levy discovered on returning that some one had stolen a scarf which he had worn last day for the first time."

"I'm not a believer in hoodlums," said Mr. Levy last night, "but it is very strange that my wife, my daughter and myself should all be robbed the same day. I never experienced anything of the kind before."—Chicago Record.

The inequity of a boy in assumption the other day resulted in the finding of $600 and will cause a lawsuit. The personal estate of Silas Camp, a rich old bachelor, who died a month ago, was sold at auction. Among the goods disposed of was an old safe, which was knocked down for $3.50. The safe had been used by Camp, but after his death it was opened by his relatives, and everything of value was taken out, as they supposed. Before the purchasers had an opportunity to take it away, however, a small boy worked the combination and opened the door. While examining the interior he pulled out a private drawer, and out rolled a pile of goldpieces. When counted, they were found to amount to nearly $600. The money was taken in charge by Camp's brother under the protests of the new owners, who say they will bring suit for the gold—Allentown (Pa.) Leader.

A Hayrack Amusement.

A rather curious spectacle on Court street in Auburn recently was a hayrack containing a bed made up neatly. In the bed was a man, evidently an invalid, for he lay back weakly upon the pillows. A hat was upon his head, contrasting rather strangely with his surroundings. Beside the bed sat a lady and over him bent another carefully attending to his wants. This sickroom on wheels was part of a spring moving and will go on record as one of the most novel loads of the season.—Lewiston Journal.

MENTAL IMAGES.

Material Pictures, Contemporaneous With Thought Imprinted Upon the Brain.

"A man conversing in earnest," says Emerson in his essay on "Nature," "if he watch his intellectual processes, will find that a material image, more or less luminous, arises in his mind contemporaneous with every thought, which furnishes the vestment of the thought."

This power of forming mental images appears to vary in strength among individuals to a considerable degree. Naturally we should expect to find it powerful in poets and artists. Charles Dickens has himself told us that he actually "saw" his creations as he wrote, and M. Taine mentions a painter who only looked at an object while he sketched its outline and was able to fill in the colors from the image of it in his mind. On the other hand, there are people of equal intelligence who, being unable to see such mental images themselves, have doubted their existence, and Mr. Francis Galton has shown that habits of abstract thought, such as men of science and philosophers indulge in, are apt to weaken the capacity of forming mental pictures.

Mr. Kirkpatrick of Winona, Minn., an experimental psychologist, has made a series of observations on this phenomenon with the help of his classes. The scholars were asked to write down just what came into their minds when certain familiar words, such as "book," "tree," "church," were called out, and the answers were carefully investigated. He found that the majority of the students formed distinct images of the objects corresponding to the words, and the rest formed indistinct images, with a few exceptions, who seem to have indulged in philosophical abstractions. The word "book," for example, called up visions of a Bible, a dictionary, a novel, in all but a few scholars, who thought of "food for the mind" or "the thoughts of some person." The word "tree" was represented by some kind of tree, more especially the illustrations of trees which George Washington cut down. The word "church" usually evoked a picture of some church in the vicinity, but some of the hearers thought of a "religious organization." It is evident from his results that most people are "visualizers" in thinking, while a few are "nonvisualizers." The tendency to form distinct images was very conspicuous among the female students, and in both sexes it reaches an abnormal development about the ages of 14 and 15, or during the period of adolescence, which, it has been otherwise observed, is also one of exceptional good health and rapid growth. The tendency is further checked or fostered by the occupations in life.—Cassell's Magazine.

Made Him Tired.

A Texas congressman is thinking of resigning because he is kept so busy by his friends in Texas urging upon him the administration the necessity of appointing one to foreign missions. He reminds one of the 4-year-old child saying his prayers at his mother's knee. Having concluded, as usual, with "God bless papa and mamma, grandpa and grandmamma, uncles and aunts," etc., she gave a great sigh and said: "Oh, mamma, dear, I do wish those people would pray for themselves, for I'm tired of praying for them."—Texas Siftings.

THE OLDEST TWINS.

At Peterboro, N. H., live Elvira and Elmira Fife, who claim to be and probably are the oldest twins living. Next August they will be 53. At the age of 14 they entered the employ of a local manufacturing company, and for 60 years they remained on its pay roll, the maximum wages earned being 99 cents per day and the minimum 71 cents for three days' labor.

A Boston Journal reporter recently visited them and has never ridden on a railroad train? queried he.

"It is," was the reply, "and, what is more," said both in one voice, "we never will. Although the Boston and Maine railroad has run cars within 10 rods of our door ever since they built the road into this town, we have never yet entered a car. We came pretty near it at one time. A few years ago some of the townspeople wished us to take a ride in the cars, and we came so near it that we went to the depot, but backed out before we got aboard."

Nor have these ladies ever entered a theater, and very rarely did they enter society, and in all their lives they have been separated but 70 hours at any one interval, and when Elvira was taken ill and it was for a few days thought she could not recover Elmira was nearly crazy and threatened to commit suicide if her sister was taken away.

"I don't wish to live if the old woman," as they always call each other, "is taken away."

The strong resemblance between them is still as pronounced as ever. One great peculiarity about these women has been that, although living in the same house and eating from the same table, they have always lived separately—that is, each has cooked her own meal. If one had a boiled dinner, the other had a turkey, the other would buy a little larger one, and so in everything they vied with each other to see who would live the better.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fever, and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all drug stores in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute.
